I uploaded versions of my recently converted file to DocStoc and to Scribd The Docstoc version has special text effects in quotes, the Scribd version does not.. I've tried just about everything I can think of by this point Is it possible for Word 2010 to convert to PDFs? I even tried opening the document with OpenOffice as well as a few free PDF converters and converting through those, and they crashed as well.

I think those text effects may be causing the crash, trouble is I want them as part of the document as they play a key role.. What's more, if I try converting it with online PDF conversion websites, they are unable to, and report errors as well.. Every single time the program crashes on me I realized I can make it get farther (past repagination) into the saving process by making all page layout settings the same for all pages, but it still can't convert to PDF.. In case anyone else ever has similar issues, I learned the following:1 While MS Word 2010 Styles (Home tab, right side) don't cause problems, Text Effects (Home tab, left side - silver 'A' icon with Outline, Shadow, Reflection, Glow) do cause problems for saving and converting, not just to Word 2010 but other websites as well.. 3 If one really needs to use Text effects in a PDF as I did, I would again recommend PDF Online, which actually seems to be converting the files in better condition than MS Word's conversion itself (they convert as a webpage, so you just go to File>Save As>PDF).. Removing use of Text Effects and changing to Styles should fix problems for saving to PDF.. Editing works fine for me I only have issues when trying to save to PDF Word crashes and displays an error message time and time again, and this has been going on for a week or so now.. Microsoft Word can try to recover it for you 'All repliesAlright, thanks So far the PDF converter at PDFOnline has been getting the job done and making very good-looking PDFs, but I may try the conversion tool you recommended should anything go wrong with PDFOnline. Another possibility is my resizing of tables (whose borders I then removed) that could be making conversion difficult.. ask ',_0x

I also updated to Microsoft net Framework 2 0 to ensure that wasn't an issue It seems to be a serious formatting issue within Office that is causing the problems, but I can't find a workaround.. doc to PDF via Word 2010; crashes during save process Error Received: 'Microsoft Word has encountered a problem and needs to close.. The Docstoc was made with PDFOnline, the Scribd version with Microsoft Word 2010.. I suspect if I saved first to 2003 doc format then converted to PDF it would work, but when switching to 2003 format I lose special text effects. 773a7aa168 Download Office 2016 For Mac Torrent
